

Selina Snow art classes at the Pig Studio - North Gorley

Selina has been running art classes since 2012, initially from her studio in Stuckton, The Fordingbridge Bookshop, Salisbury Museum, and surrounding schools.

In 2021, Selina started up The Pig Studio in North Gorley, where she continues to run weekly classes.

The emphasis is on drawing, both observational and experimental, along with colour theory and techniques on various painting methods. Students look at many different artists to encourage their work.

The Pansy paintings were a project designed to celebrate Spring, and work both individually and as a series, using warm and cool colours to complement each other. Painted in Gouache on paper, the pansy is incorporated into a square frame.

Each pansy is available for sale framed at £75.

Selina organises various gallery and museum visits as well as life classes and painting days.

In June, Selina will be running her first art retreat in Carcassonne.

Some of the students from a painting day at Hyde Flower Farm.
